Ping Tester is a simple ping program to test the availability of a server or a domain, displayed in the Windows desktop. Ping Tester features Windows EXE archive A single configuration file, so no special installation is required. Very simple to configure. Live test for domains or IP addresses. Can send ping requests to any domain or IP address. Can toggle autoscaling DPI. Test the availability of your domain or a particular IP address can be easily done using the 'ping' command in the Windows console. However, if you are one of the users who doesn't fancy the command prompt that much, you can use one of the many ping tools out there. Ping Tester is one of the alternatives you have. Ping domains or IP addresses to check their response and availability Designed as a simple desktop gadget, this application enables you to run ping commands to check a server or a domain without having to use the console. In other words, it provides a simple GUI for the standard ping command and a straightforward way to check whether a server is down or not. To use it, you just have to enter the name of the domain you want to verify or its IP address if you know it. With a single push of a button, the test is started. If the test is completed successfully, the gadget displays a 'ping passed' message, along with the number of ping requests that have been performed, and their results. Limited set of settings, but no more is needed Although not very rich in the 'Settings' area, Ping Tester does feature a few commands to change the gadget's size and toggle autoscale DPI. Additionally, it allows you to customize the number of tests the application should perform, change the buffer size, and reduce the time interval between two consecutive ping requests. You can remove the title or the copyright info of the gadget, if you want to. And if you want to reset all the settings to the way they were before Ping Tester was deployed, you can just use the dedicated option within the gadget. Sends ping requests and displays the number of responses Ping Tester can send ping requests to any domain or IP address, displaying the success rate of the requests once the test is done. It allows you to set the buffer size and other basic settings. Nevertheless, no additional information is displayed, as it happens when running the command in the console. For instance, it would be good for the gadget to record the response

Ping Tester Crack Activator Latest

Ping Tester is a simple service or a desktop gadget for checking the responses and availability of a server or a domain. It provides you with the functionality of running a standard ping command and checking its response from a single simple push of a button. Using the computer or smartphone you're connecting to, you check the response and availability of a server or a domain. It can check a specific IP address, or a domain name or URL. The tool will connect to a server/domain and send ping requests. If the server/domain responds to the ping request it will display the ping results. If your connection fails, the tool will attempt to reconnect by ping'ing the server/domain again. If the server still does not respond it will report the connection was not successful. If you need to check the responses and availability for multiple servers/domains, use the wizard for that by selecting the 'Multi server scan' option. Additional settings can be configured in the 'Settings' area. Enter the name of a server/domain, or its IP address. In the 'Options' area set the number of ping requests and buffer size, and then click on 'Start'. Ping Tester also checks if the servers/domains are online or offline. It is easy to use, with its simple and intuitive interface, as well as the simplicity of its options. You can even drag and drop the application on your desktop and thus have it as a portable tool. If you're not using a portable device to connect to the internet, you can even use Bluetooth to avoid network cables. Try it out yourself, without the need of involving the desktop. A New Metabolic Index Predicts the Development of Severe Complications in Hospitalized Patients With Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) is a leading cause of morbidity and mortality. Severe acute exacerbation of COPD (AE-COPD) requires hospitalization. We examined whether a new metabolic index of patients at high risk of AE-COPD could be used to identify severe disease in hospitalized patients with moderate-to-severe COPD. Retrospective analysis of data collected from December 2013 through December 2014. The diabetes-related metabolic index (DRMI) was derived using the fasting blood glucose (FBS) and glycated hemoglobin (HbA1c) levels and was calculated using the following formula: $DRMI = [(HbA1c) \times FBS/72] \times 100$. A total of 1033 patients with moderate-to-severe COPD (622 men, 401 women; mean \pm standard deviation age, 68.3 ± 9.7 years) who were hospitalized for COPD were enrolled in this study. Of the 1033 patients, 21 (2.0%) had a first-ever AE-COPD (group A) and 29 (2.8%) died (group D). The DRMI was significantly higher in group D than in group A. The area under the receiver operating characteristic curve for the DRMI was significantly higher than that of
