The problem is, when I press the return key, I get two characters on the screen at the same time, which I don't want. I have tried putting a if statement on the eventFilter so that if the key is equal to 13, then do nothing, however, I still receive two characters on the screen. Is there any way of filtering out the event if it is the return key, without changing the focus on the widget? A: You need to implement a KeyReleaseEventFilter in your QPlainTextEdit widget, and check the modifiers key in your KeyReleaseEventFilter. You can read here for the information: //KeyReleaseEventFilter.cpp class KeyReleaseEventFilter : public QWidget::eventFilter { Q_OBJECT public: void eventFilter(QObject* obj, QEvent
